ONC Announces Two Innovation Challenge Winners

New tools to help patients better manage and access information in their electronic health records (EHRs) have been selected as challenge winners by the Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology (ONC) at the US Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) during the Health 2.0 Sixth Annual Fall Conference in San Francisco. With this announcement, patients will have more tools to better manage their health care. The EHR accessibility module will make it easier for people with disabilities access their electronic health records.

The Blue Button Mash Up Challenge, launched on June 5, 2012, builds on a prior Blue Button challenge to make personal health information more usable and meaningful for the individual consumer or patient. The winner, iBlueButton, submitted by Humetrix of San Diego, Calif., is a dual-app system that provides an intuitive, patient-centered, secure two-way mobile solution, where patients can connect to their Blue Button and other health records.

The EHR Accessibility Module Challenge, launched on Jan. 30, 2012, asked solvers to create and test a module or application that makes it easy for people with disabilities to access and interact with the health data stored in their EHRs. The winning team, Pinaxis, created Apollo, a fully accessible Internet portal that will allow patients to interact with any provider's existing EHR system over the Web.

The challenges are part of ONC's Investing in Innovation program which utilizes prizes and challenges to facilitate innovation and obtain solutions to intractable health IT problems. A list of ONC challenge winners can be found here.

Funding Opportunities

Funding Opportunity in Safety and Health for Older Women

Funding through this request from the Department of Health and Human Service Office of Women's Health is available for activities and events that enhance access to information and health care resources that promote the safety and health of older women (women 50+) in the United States and its affiliated territories.

John Snow, Inc. (JSI) will be the lead contractor for administration of this RFP. OWH contracted with JSI to provide general program support to its Central Office and ten Regional Offices on Women's Health to manage regional health projects and activities in women's health in the ten HHS regions.

Proposed activities should focus on one of the three general topic areas:

Preventive and Behavioral Health such as:

Chronic Disease Self Management
(http://www.aoa.gov/AoARoot/AoA_Programs/HPW/ARRA/Index.aspx)

Cardiovascular Disease and/or Heart Attack Symptoms in Women

Priority consideration will be given to proposals which demonstrate collaboration among two or more local community resources. Community resources may include (but are not limited to) senior services, Area Agency on Aging, health care providers, patient advocacy and education organizations, local hospitals, health care professional organizations, and local media.

Projects will be funded up to a maximum amount of $2,500. Proposals must be received no later than November 15, 2012, at 5:00 p.m. Mountain Time.

Important Notes:

For help with this RFP, e-mail: owhapplication@jsi.com or phone toll-free: 1-866-224-3815.

A conference call will be held to clarify instructions for submitting a proposal. The call will be held on Tuesday, October 23, 2012, at 3:00 p.m. ET/2:00 p.m. CT/1:00 p.m. MT/12:00 p.m. PT.

To join the conference call, please dial 1-866-393-5407. Upon dialing in, please provide the conference ID number: 47016050. The title of the conference call is "Safety and Health for Older Women." Advance registration is not required to join the call.

Superstar Foundation Invites Nominations for Veronica Awards to Honor Social Service Professionals

The Superstar Foundation, a nonprofit organization committed to recognizing and rewarding great social service professionals for the invaluable work that they do, is accepting nominations for the 2012 Veronica Awards.

The awards are given to honor and reward outstanding direct service professionals who have demonstrably and consistently improved the lives of their clients through the development of transformational relationships. Submissions are evaluated on the basis of evidence including letters of recommendation and staff performance data.

Eligible applicants are direct service staff at 501(c)(3) organizations who directly serve program participants.

Self-nominations are encouraged. The program also accepts nominations on behalf of direct service workers by colleagues and/or supervisors.
In 2011, the foundation made four awards of $5,000 to direct service workers.

The application deadline is November 21, 2012 at 8pm (EST).

Cardinal Health Foundation Offers Grants to Improve Patient Safety

Cardinal Health Foundation has announced that, for the sixth consecutive year, it will award grants to help United States, Canadian and Puerto Rican hospitals, health systems, community health clinics, and other nonprofit healthcare institutions improve the efficiency and quality of their patient care.

The foundation's E3 Grant Program Focus areas includes those designed to improve medication safety, particularly as patients transition from hospital environments to home and other healthcare settings. The program supports the implementation of evidence-based practices that have been identified as successful and lead to positive patient outcomes. While the implementation of evidenced-based practices with quantifiable outcomes is the goal, the program also encourages grantees to be innovative in the way the projects are implemented so that the work can be sustained as well as spread to other institutions.

The foundation anticipates awarding approximately twenty-five grants of between $15,000 and $35,000. Deadline is December 7, 2012.

The foundation will host two webinars to provide an overview and to answer questions. Note that the capacity for each of these webinars is 150. They will be first come, first served so it is recommended that you join early.

Integrating Medicare and Medicaid: What's Happening Now, and What It Means for Assisted Living and Other LTSS

Twenty-six states have applied to the federal government to combine Medicaid and Medicare. Under these applications, up to two million dual-eligibles (persons eligible for both Medicaid and Medicare) would be transferred into an integrated Medicaid/Medicare health care system. In most cases, they would receive care through a managed care organization.

The changes will be dramatic. The potential benefits are substantial, but so are the potential risks for consumers. At the state and federal levels, consumer advocacy will be vital in assuring that the new systems fulfill their potential and properly protect consumers' rights to quality health care.

Join the Assisted Living Consumer Alliance for a free webinar explaining the dual integration process, with a focus on how the new systems will affect long-term services and supports (LTSS). The speakers will be Georgia Burke and Eric Carlson, attorneys from the National Senior Citizens Law Center.

Date: Tuesday, October 30, 2012
Time: 11:00 a.m. Pacific/2:00 p.m. Eastern

After registering you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the Webinar.

New AHRQ Tool Assesses Patient Safety Culture in Pharmacies

The Department of Health and Human Services Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ) has released the Pharmacy Survey on Patient Safety Culture and a free toolkit of materials that helps community pharmacies assess their culture of patient safety. It is the latest survey in AHRQ's suite of patient safety culture surveys now being used by hospitals, nursing homes and medical offices.

The new survey is designed for pharmacy staff, including clerks, technicians and pharmacists. It includes 36 survey items that measure 11 areas of patient safety culture such as physical space and environment, patient counseling, communication about prescriptions across shifts, and teamwork. It also includes items about the frequency of documenting mistakes and an overall rating on patient safety.

Toolkit materials include the survey form, a document identifying items by composite, a Survey User's Guide, and results from 55 pharmacies that participated in the 2012 pilot study. To download the survey, visit: http://www.ahrq.gov/qual/patientsafetyculture/pharmsurvindex.htm

New Department of Education App to Identify US Currency
US Treasurer Applauds Department of Education's Accessibility Effort

The US Department of Education recently announced the launch of the "IDEAL Currency Identifier," a free downloadable application (app) to assist individuals who are blind or visually impaired to denominate US currency on some mobile devices. The app, which interacts with Google's "Eyes-Free" applications, can be downloaded for free on more than 1,250 different wireless devices.

Treasurer of the United States Rosie Rios applauded the Department of Education's role in the app's development. "Treasury is committed to providing meaningful access to US currency and, by using technology, we can help hundreds of thousands of individuals who are blind or visually impaired. Our collaboration with the Department of Education allowed us to be resourceful and, in turn, more individuals will have the means to independently denominate the U.S. currency they use in daily commerce."

This new app is one of several measures the government is developing to assist people with vision impairments to denominate currency. For more information about the IDEAL Currency Identifier and other accessibility apps, please visit www.moneyfactory.gov
